MR. Louis J. JENNINGS, the special London correspondent of the New York World, writes a letter to that paper showing the comparative cost of living in London and New York. In reference to rents he says that the difference is greatly in favor of London. A very good house, with eight bedrooms, dining, drawing and reception rooms, can be had in Kensington, a fashionable suburb, for $500 per year. A comtortable house with six rooms, and garden front and rear, can be had at Dulwich, four miles from London bridge, for $125 per year; and Mr. Jennings does not know where a house anything like it could be found within twenty miles of New York for three times that money. Rents, such as are common in New York, of from $1,200 to $3,000 a year, would suffice to hire a mansion in the most fashionable parts of London, and the class there which can afford to pay £500 or £600 a year for a house is exceedingly limited.

The wages for in door servants, including a weekly allowance of 1s. 6d. for washing, and a shilling for beer, range from $50 to $110 per year, cooks getting the largest sum paid. Here again Loudon has the advantage over the American metropolis, since in the latter city the wages of cooks range from $12 to $25 per

Clothing is much cheaper in London than in New York, and the price of fashionable dresses are lower by at least one-third, and oftener one-

Coal, if anything, is a little cheaper, but burns out considerably sooner than the American product.

Beef in London is one shilling per pound and Mr. Jenning, himself an Euglishman, expresses the belief that New York beef is better than the London article. English mutton, however, he contends, is better than American. It is about twenty seven cents per pound, while it sells a little higher in New York. Fowls are very scarce and fetch $1.75 per pair. The best butter is two shillings per pound.

Game is much dearer in London than in New York, but as a rule provisions of almost in my family for Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, every kind are much cheaper. Peaches which and regard it an invaluable remedy. It has are so common with us cost twenty-five cents each in gold in London. Mr. Jennings thinks that a family of six or seven persons can live very comfortably in or pear London for £10 (say $56) a week, not including rent. This would cover a reasonable expenditure on "extras," such as newspapers, postage, &c. To live on a similar scale in New would cost $100 a week. He is quite sure that £1,000 a year in London-which is what is generally called a middle class income-would go further than $10,000 a year would in New York, when rent and all other expenses are taken into account.

ATTEMPTED JAIL DELIVERY IN RICHMOND. The Richmond Enquirer of yesterday morning gives the following account of the late attempted jail delivery there:

Yesterday evening Hillary Page, the Chescounty jail under sentence of death, made a desperate attempt to escape. It seems that about 6 o'clock Mr. Fisher, the jailor, went, as was his custom before locking up, to Hillery's cell and conducted him down into the yard to get a bucket of water. Returning, when just opposite the cell door, the condemned man wheeled as suddenly as a flash, and dashing the contents of the bucket into Mr. Fisher's face, grappled with him. Mr. Fisher, being blinded by the water, Hillary succeeded in getting hold of his arms from behind, so as to prevent his using his pistol, and made frantic efforts to throw him over the banister to the & Co., London, England. story below, but finding that he was too strong for him he finally released his hold and dashed down the steps into the yard, where the other pri-oners, some dozen or more in number, were awaiting to assist him. Mr. Fisher immediately followed him, and springing into the crowd drew his pistel just in time to prevent a general rush toward the gates. Hillary beggod, when he found himself confronted with the jailor's pistol, pitcously for his life, reminding Mr. Fisher that he was to be hung in a very short time, and that the attempt to escape was but a natural effort to save his neck. He was taken to his cell and locked up, and in future will hardly be trusted with even so apparently armless a weapon as a pail of water. The whole affair was evidently preconcerted, the other prisoners being in the plot; and but for the promptness and nerve of Mr. Fisher there would doubtless have been a general jail de-

To Enjoy Walking .- To be properly enlived, a wasking tour should be gone upon alone. If you go in company, or even in pairs, it is no longer a walking tour in anything but name; it is something else, and more in the haure of a picnic. It should be gone upon alone, because freedom is of the essence; becruse you should be able to stop and go on, and tollow this way or that, as the freak takes you; and because you must have your own pace, and actther trot alongside a champion walker, nor mince in time with a girl. And then you must be open to all impressions, and let your thoughts take color from what you see. You should be as a pipe for any to play upon. "I cannot see the wit," says Hazlitt, "of walking and talk-ing at the same time. When I am in the country I wish to vegetate like the country," which is the gist of all that can be said upon the mat ter. There should be no cackle of voices at Your elbow to jar on the meditarive silence of the morning .- Cornhill Magazine.

A PLAN to make Mount Vesuvius practically useful has been broached in London. It is nothing else than to convert the crater into a receptacle for dead bodies.
